Drive Performance in Challenging Times through Coaching

In these turbulent times it's key for leaders to provide feedback, manage performance and guide people to achieve results. These leadership actions are all potential coaching conversations, yet many leaders struggle to recognise the coaching opportunity.

At the core, coaching is communication-based personal interaction. Many coaching workshops address the tools and skills necessary for effective coaching but fail to address the interpersonal dynamics. For coaching to be truly constructive requires emotional intelligence. This program is designed to develop the skills for leaders to recognise coaching opportunities and hold meaningful coaching conversations which engage, develop and guide others to perform and achieve.
